

BUILDING PERFORMANCE ASSOCIATION

JOIN THE BPA MEMBER NETWORK

The Building Performance Association (BPA) membership keeps you connected in the world of home and building performance. As a member, you'll have access to top training resources, educational content, peer connection opportunities, and more to keep you on the cutting edge of what's happening in the industry.

ABOUT US

BPA is a membership-driven industry association dedicated to advancing the home and building performance industry by delivering improved energy efficiency, health, safety, and environmental performance through industry partners.

OUR MEMBERS

BPA represents all aspects of the home and building performance industry. Our membership categories deliver value-added benefits and services, targeted to the goals of a business or organization and its individual employees. Our goal is to provide individuals and businesses with resources and support to enhance their value, allowing them to grow and expand. Our members include companies that sell and market products and services (B2B or B2C), individuals directly servicing businesses and consumers, organizations such as utilities along with their employees, testing and training centers, schools, and government entities.

ENGAGEMENT THROUGH MEMBERSHIP

BPA offers company and individual memberships. Each membership level offers benefits and services specific to the needs of the member:

Company memberships include benefits for an unlimited number of employees and focuses on your business and its goals and objectives for the industry.

Individual membership targets one person's focus on growth, education, and training.
